

Gumm's Corner

Looking across from the track to the planting area. Looks as if the grass has been mown.

The top end of the planting area

Looking down the other end. Plenty of weed but most of the plants look healthy.

A patch of double-guarded trees looking really good. Almost all the double guarded trees extended above the guards – some by quite a way.

This is a plant not double guarded with obvious signs of being grazed. I took the second guard off some of the taller trees and double guarded a few of these. It will be interesting to see how they go.